MISCELLANEOUS.

CURES STOMACH TROUBLES

THE body gets its life from food properly digested. Healthy digestion means pure blood for the body, but stomach troubles arise from carelessness in eating and stomach disorders upset the entire system. Improperly masticated food sours on the stomach, causing distressing pains, belching and nausea. When over-eating is persisted in the stomach becomes weakened and worn out and dyspepsia claims the victim.

Thedford's Black-Draught cures dyspepsia. It frees the stomach and bowels of congested matter and gives the stomach new life. The stomach is quickly invigorated and the natural stimulation results in a good appetite, with the power to thoroughly digest food.

You can build up your stomach with this mild and natural remedy. Try Thedford's Black-Draught today. You can buy a package from your dealer for 25c. If he does not keep it, send the money to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and a package will be mailed you.

APRIL SHOWERS

By Ruth Santelle

Copyright, 1904, by K. M. Whitehead

The raindrops pattered down as merrily and musically as if an unexpected shower were a most delightful thing. They washed the brick pavement to a fresh red, making tiny rivulets of the gutters.

But Phyllis Dalrymple was not occupied with admiration of the raindrops' pranks. It was provoking! Ten minutes before there had not been a suspicion of rain. And here she was cooped up on the tiny piazza of an apartment house, without the remotest hope of rescue till the rain should please to cease. How empty the street seemed too!

A lone pedestrian! Enviable creature, with rain coat and umbrella, sauntering along as if being out in the rain were the pleasantest thing imaginable, and now—what an odd young man he was—stopping right in front of her to watch the tiny river swirl and divide upon an obstructing brick!

"I beg your pardon, sir, but could you possibly let me"— Her voice faltered.

Herbert Ward heeled about and beheld, perched on the top step under the narrow shelter, a most alluring picture of distress.

"Can I be of assistance?" he began, drawing nearer, hat in hand. "You were speaking to me?"

The vision stiffened from its appealing attitude.

"You must be mistaken, sir. I do not recall having met you." Then, hastily, at his look of injured surprise: "Oh, yes, yes. Forgive me. I did speak to you. Oh, please don't go away and leave me now!"

The bewilderment on Ward's face was so very frank that the girl broke into a ripple of laughter.

"Really, I must ask you to forgive me again. I do not mean to be rude. But it was funny to see you looking as overcome as I felt. There! That smile makes me sure you are good natured, and if you'll come up out of the rain I'll try to tell you."

Ward accepted with alacrity.

"You see I was caught by the shower"—Ward nodded, with a comprehensive glance at the dainty toilet—"and I simply must go on, because I promised to take this lace pattern to old Mrs. Walker, and I always keep my word. And I couldn't wait very long either, because I've an engagement at 3. And there's no car, no cab, no anything—and you just looked like salvation—and I was sure you hadn't anything to do, because you weren't hurrying at all, you know"—

"Not a thing except your bidding until 3," assented Ward. "I, too, have an appointment."

"Then you could just as well as not, you know, walk along? I don't believe I ever asked any one before," she confessed, with a charming blush, in apology for her embarrassment.

"Couldn't have done so well with years of experience," declared Ward, looking interested. "My worthy umbrella and humble self are yours most devotedly. And as it seems already to be raining quite a little less viciously perhaps you'd like to start," he suggested.

"You are very kind," replied Phyllis demurely, gathering up her ruffles preparatory to setting out.

As a matter of fact, it was not raining much now, but the big umbrella and its stalwart owner were excellent company in the deserted street.

"I almost believe I like unconventionality," said Phyllis, picking her way as a dainty woman will. "It's so—well, different from everyday."

"I am convinced that I like unconventionality, if this is it," responded Ward.

Phyllis looked reproachful.

"This was what I thought about it before I first spoke," she said hurriedly. "Of course we don't know each other at all"—

"Worse luck!" said a voice at her side.

—"but I need to be rescued, and he's apparently nothing better to do than rescue me. He looks trustworthy, and after he takes me to Mrs. Walker's, where I can send for the carriage, we shall never see each other again"—

"Never see each other again! Oh, I say, after I do my best"—

—"and as I am perfectly sure"—with no hesitation to show that she heard a word of the protest—"from his appearance that he would not dream of taking advantage of my confidence I think I shall run the risk of appealing to his generosity."

They walked for a minute silently. Then she stole a glance at his clear cut face, flushed with mortification, and relented.

"You are doing me such a favor"—more genially—"that I don't mind telling you that I was horribly frightened after I spoke and truly believe I should have run away the minute you turned if it hadn't been for the rain."

"Thank heaven for rain!" he murmured so fervently that they both smiled and caught each other in the act.

"But I really think it's not raining a drop now," she said. "There's nothing left but the sprinkle from the trees."

"It would ruin your frock in no time." And he gave the exquisitely gowned little figure another openly approving glance.

"But, of course," responded Phyllis, "I couldn't permit myself to presume upon your kindness when I don't really need you, and, you see, the sun is trying its best to shine this very minute."

"May failure attend its efforts—that is—I mean—you knew how very uncertain such weather is, and if I allowed you to be caught again I'd never forgive myself."

"Oh, you wouldn't think of it again, of course," she laughed coyly. "But I should be desolated if I caused you to miss your appointment. It's quite a little nearer 3 than it was, you know."

"Hang the appointment! Oh, I say, I beg your pardon, you know. But really I'm having such a good time I'd forgotten, and it's a bore anyway."

"The appointment?"

"Yes, a beastly duty, you see. You wouldn't mind my unburdening myself? I'm just in town for a few weeks on business, and an old school chum made me promise I'd look up his sister—gave me a letter and all that, which I'm to present this afternoon. I know her sort too well—the frothy, gushy kind. Old Bob's the right stuff, but these girls—Lord, I'd no end rather be excused. If it had only been some one like you, now"—

"Oh, you really mustn't say it," came a queer, muffled voice.

Ward looked down to see a very pink face, a pair of unaccountably roguish eyes and a tempting mouth that twitched at the corners.

"Why mustn't I say it?" he persisted. "Hang conventionality! There I go again—but hang it anyway! Here I am having the best time of my life, and just because we happen not to have met formally I can't say what I think. And, worse still, I've got to go presently and run my head straight into a noose. Probably find an 'at home,' and the house full of others just like her. I'd not rebel at all if you were to 'take care' of me—that is, if you were willing. Can't we be introduced or something, whatever would be necessary to make it proper?"

The pretty face had burned pinker and pinker.

"Don't you think you're a bit hard on a girl you've never seen?" suggested the same muffled voice.

"Don't have to see her. What's more, don't want to. I know the sort, I tell you. But Bob"—

"Bob who? I might know his sister."

"Bob Dalrymple. Grand old chap too."

"I knew it!" triumphantly. "I mean—yes, I have heard of him. And here we are at Mrs. Walker's. You can't think how grateful I am for the share in your umbrella—and your very refreshing frankness. Goodby."

"Oh, I say! You're going to let me find you again, aren't you? To lose you at once for a mere form when I've waited all these years."

The genuine distress on his face was too much for Phyllis' composure, and the repressed laughter came in a gale of merriment.

"I won't detain you longer," she said, swinging the gate with her toe. "I have an engagement at 3—something of a nuisance too. I shall have to entertain a friend of my brother's, and I understand he's rather a stick—not half so charming as you have been, I'm sure."

Then the gate slammed against her hand, and a shower of white cards sprinkled the walk. Ward bent to pick up her purse and from every white square was confronted by the words, "Miss Phyllis Dalrymple."

"Miss Dalrymple," he stammered in an agony of humiliation. "I—I—how could you let me—I"—

But Phyllis was tripping up the walk. As she reached the step she turned and smiled. Just then the sun burst from behind a cloud, transforming the world into a sparkle of diamond drops.

"Miss Dalrymple will be at home, alone, at 3," she said. "It is possible that she would listen to a—well, let us say an explanation."

A Few Moments of Leisure.

Thrift and industry have been the guiding stars of Miss Jelly's life. During a sojourn in the Adirondacks with an invalid niece she made the best of her time and has only twenty-four hours to regret—hours during which she was lost in deep woods into which she had ventured to search for a desired medicinal plant.

Her absence much alarmed her niece, and when the search party at last returned with Miss Jelly, whom they had found hungry, but safe, the niece fell on her aunt's neck.

"Oh, Aunt Phoebe," she sobbed, "weren't you frightened to death out in those dreadful woods all night?"

"Frightened!" said Miss Jelly, with fine scorn. "No, I wasn't. I reckoned there wouldn't be any critters but what I could get away from if it came to that, for I can climb with the best, and I'd chosen my tree. But it did make me mad to think of the chance I had to study out that knitting pattern Miss Brown's cousin sent her, and there I was with not a single knitting needle or a mite o' yarn!"—Youth's Companion.

Too Rich For the Blood.

A tall, rawboned, country looking fellow wandered into a Seattle restaurant recently and diffidently took a seat, removing his hat and carefully putting it under the table. A waiter brought him a bill of fare and waited for some time, but, becoming tired, left the fellow carefully studying the list in front of him. Every time the waiter came near him he was still buried in a perusal of the bill of fare, and at length, at the end of nearly half an hour, arose to depart. "What is the matter, sir?" anxiously queried the waiter, thinking that the patron had been offended. "Too steep fer me, young feller. I can't pay $28.45 fer one meal. It's too rich fer my blood." On the table at which the man had been seated was found a small piece of paper covered with figures. He had added together the prices of everything on the bill of fare.

A WALK IN THE WOODS.

Emerson Says It's One of the Secretr For Dodging Old Age.

Few men know how to take a walk. The qualifications of a professor are endurance, plain clothes, old shoes, an eye for nature, good humor, vast curiosity, good speech, good silence and nothing too much. If a man tells me that he has an intense love of nature, I know, of course, that he has none. Good observers have the manners of trees and animals, their patient good sense, and if they add words 'tis only when words are better than silence. But a loud singer or a story teller or a vain talker profanes the river and the forest and is nothing like so good company as a dog.

When Nero advertised for a new luxury a walk in the woods should have been offered. 'Tis one of the secrets for dodging old age, for nature makes a like impression on age as on youth. Then I recommend it to people who are growing old against their will. A man in that predicament, if he stands before a mirror or among young people, is made quite too sensible of the fact, but the forest awakes in him the same feeling it did when he was a boy, and he may draw a moral from the fact that 'tis the old trees that have all the beauty and grandeur. I admire the taste which makes the avenue to a house, were the house never so small, through a wood; besides the beauty, it has a positive effect on manners, as it disposes the mind of the inhabitant and of his guests to the deference due to each. Some English reformers thought the cattle made all this wide space necessary between house and house and that if there were no cows to pasture less land would suffice. But a cow does not need so much land as the owner's eyes require between him and his neighbor.—Ralph Waldo Emerson in Atlantic.

SEEING A PICTURE.

Try to Look at It Through the Eyes of the Artist Who Painted It.

The first necessity for the proper seeing of a picture is to try to see it through the eyes of the artist who painted it. This is not a usual method. Generally people look only through their own eyes and like or dislike a picture according as it does or does not suit their particular fancy. These people will tell you, "Oh, I don't know anything about painting, but I know what I like," which is their way of saying, "If I don't like it right off I don't care to be bothered to like it at all."

Such an attitude of mind cuts one off from growth and development, for it is as much as to say, "I am very well satisfied with myself and quite indifferent to the experiences and feelings of other men." Yet it is just this feeling and experience of another man which a picture gives us. If you consider a moment you will understand why. The world itself is a vast panorama, and from it the painter selects his subject—not the copy of it exactly, since it would be impossible for him to do this even if he tried. How could he represent, for example, each blade of grass, each leaf upon a tree? So what he does is to represent the subject as he sees it, as it appeals to his sympathy or interest, and if twelve artists painted the same landscape the result would be twelve different pictures, differing according to the way in which each man had been impressed by the scene—in fact, according to his separate point of view or separate way of seeing it, influenced by his individual experience and feeling.—Charles H. Coffin in St. Nicholas.

As the Child Saw It.

A New York tenement house child who had spent a happy day in the home of a settlement worker describes the visit in the following letter, according to Charities:

"Miss —— lives in a big beautiful house. There are three floors and lots of rooms. I should think it would be hard for them to find each other, there are so many rooms. It is not so hard to find each other when you live in part of one floor. The floors were hard and shiny, with little pieces of carpet on them. No piece was big enough to cover a whole room."

An Insurance Story.

They tell this story down on Wall street: The executive officer of a great insurance company, happening one day to meet a friend in the street, found himself violently upbraided because his company refused to invest in the bonds of an enterprise with which his friend was connected.

The insurance man stood it a few minutes, then said carelessly, as if he were ordering a box of a new brand of cigars, "Oh, well, send me up a million and a half of them."—World's Work.

Poor, but Polite.

"Want some money, do ye?" said the kind old lady. "Now, I wonder ef ye deserve it. What would you do with a penny ef I gev it to ye?"

"Lady," replied the polite beggar, "yer kindness would touch me so dat I'd buy a postal card wid de money an' write yer a note o' thanks."—Catholic Standard and Times.

MUCH is being said and written about the type of man needed by the twentieth century. We all know him. We all realize that he must be a man of action, intelligence, principle and achievement. As the age demands such men. so it demands the highest type of woman. Virtue, beauty and motherhood have throughout all time been cherished as woman's noblest and loveliest attributes. With these this century asks for intelligence. Not book knowledge, alone, but a perfect conception of the true and beautiful in life, and a knowledge of the best that has been said and written in the world. Women so endowed can rightfully be the mothers of the men this age demands. Men cannot help but fulfill their duty here when brought up by mothers whose mind qualities are high and noble. The mother's influence is that which first impresses itself on the plastic and retentive mind of youth. Let this influence be full of the seeds of virtue and wisdom, and youth will harvest the golden treasures of life in after years. Let the influence be full of the seeds of vice and ignorance, and youth will come to a barren and noxious maturity. The influence of the mother is not overestimated, nor the demands of the twentieth century a dream. Where the call is for men of the type described, woman's fitness must follow, as the night the day.

THE wonderful growth of San Francisco is hardly realized until we see statistics of the building that has been going on there the past year. Rufus M. Steele, in Sunset, tells us that San Francisco spent $8,525,129 for building during the first six months of 1904. and declares that each month of the year shows such a steady increase that it may, at the end of the year, average $2,000,000 for each thirty days. The building during the first six months of the year is $5,500,000 in excess of contracts awarded during the first six months of 1900. Mr. Steele gives our commercial position credit for this great growth and our increased population.

MR. F. W. RICHARDSON, publisher of the Berkeley Gazette, and President of the California Press Association, is a candidate for Postmaster of Berkeley, now held by George Schmidt, whose term expires February next. Mr. Richardson is a staunch Republican, and with the aid of his excellent paper has done much good for his party. He is also a thorough business man, and Berkeley will be fortunate indeed if such an appointment as Richardson for the postoffice is made.

THE old adage, "marry in haste, repent at leisure," should be changed these days to read, "marry in haste, get divorced in a jiffy."

THE mad scramble for marriage licenses in Greenwood will probably be shortly followed by a mad rush for divorce decrees.

THE sailors who were being fattened up by cannibals of New Guinea should have cheated their captors by taking anti-fat.

THE high-heel shoe that caused a woman to break her ankle probably made her wish she hadn't got her foot into it.

THE above picture of the man and fish is the trademark of Scott's Emulsion, and is the synonym for strength and purity. It is sold in almost all the civilized countries of the globe.

If the cod fish became extinct it would be a world-wide calamity, because the oil that comes from its liver surpasses all other fats in nourishing and life-giving properties. Thirty years ago the proprietors of Scott's Emulsion found a way of preparing cod liver oil so that everyone can take it and get the full value of the oil without the objectionable taste. Scott's Emulsion is the best thing in the world for weak, backward children, thin, delicate people, and all conditions of wasting and lost strength.

T. S. GLAISTER'S WILL FILED FOR PROBATE

Estate Valued at $15,000. Relatives of Deceased Are Legatees.

The will of T. S. Glaister, who was killed as a result of a runaway last week, was filed for probate Monday by Robert A. Poppe, attorney for Mrs. Blanche Elizabeth Wagner, the petitioner.

The property consists of 235 acres of land in Sonoma township, valued at $10,000. The remainder of the estate consists of personal property, farming implements, wines, brandies, etc., and brings the total up to $15,000.

The first bequest made by the deceased is $500 to be given Blanche E. Wagner, to be deposited in the German Savings and Loan Society of San Francisco for his grandson, Rudolph Glaister Gustave Wagner, until he becomes of age.

To Daniel Skelton William Glaister he leaves fifty acres of vineyard, known as the part next to Switzer's side of the creek, being a portion of the Green Oaks farm.

To Percy Middleton Glaister he leaves the same, and to them is also willed twenty acres each of adjoining land.

To Thomas M. Glaister, deceased, the sum of $3000 was bequeathed, which was given him during his lifetime, and accepted as an advancement on his share of the estate.

To his daughter, Mrs. Wagner, the deceased wills the residue of his estate. She is authorized to sell or dispose of property in such manner as her judgment shall dictate, and without order or hindrance of the Court.

Nothing is left to the children of his deceased wife by a former marriage. Decedent declares in the will that his wife was given $23,163 in her life time for the support of her children and her mother, and in lieu of which he feels that his duty by them has been done.

Corbaley Back From the Fair.

Conductor Walter Corbaley, or "Happy Corbaley," as some of his friends call him, has returned from a six weeks' visit to the World's Fair and the South. Mr. Corbaley enjoyed his trip from start to finish. He says that the "Pike" was a wonder, and the exhibits splendid. He saw the ascension of Baldwin's airship, and declares it was more successful than that of Sans Dumont.

Mr. Corbaley says that the prices in St. Louis were anything but fair—one enterprising restaurateur charging 90 cents for a plate of beans and a cup of coffee. Corbaley's headquarters was the "Inside Inn."

He stayed at St. Louis sixteen days, and when he got through doing the Fair, he declares that he felt as if he had walked from Frisco.

From St. Louis he went to Louisville, Kentucky, and from there to Little Rock and Arkansas Hot Springs.

He enjoyed his vacation immensely, and now he is back in harness on the California Northwestern, and his many friends on this branch of the road welcome his return. During his absence Conductor Saunders was in his place, and made many friends through his courtesy and attention.

Will Be a Christmas Bride.

Miss Florence Burkett, daughter of T. R. Burkett, formerly of this valley, but now of Woodbridge, San Joaquin county, will be a Christmas bride. She is to be married to George Parkinson. Mr. Parkinson resides at San Jose, but at the present time he is Principal of the Woodbridge school.

Miss Burkett is a charming girl, and has a host of friends in this county.

Harry Baines and Leo Flanagan visited Petaluma last Saturday.

Ralph Ent returned from a brief visit to San Francisco Wednesday.

Phil Rossi is contemplating a trip to the Tuolumne county gold fields.

Mrs. John Serres and Miss Ada Riley were shopping in Petaluma Saturday.

P. Forni of the "Old Corner Saloon" visited Sacramento the latter part of last week.

J. T. Peters, the real estate man of San Francisco, made his weekly visit here Sunday.

A. M. Barley, formerly of this place, is reported to have fallen heir to an immense fortune in Germany.

Wm. Baines and his sister, Mrs. J. La Torres of San Francisco, visited relatives near this place Sunday.

Twelve fine mules were shipped from this place to Knight's Landing via the Southern Pacific on Thursday.

John Serres, mine host of the Bellevue, will leave for San Francisco in a few days and will be absent a week.

Mat Granfeld, a well-known Olympic Club man of San Francisco, is spending a few days at the French Cottage.

Mrs. L. D. Batchelor and children spent Thanksgiving in San Francisco. They returned home Saturday evening.

The roads hereabouts are now in better shape than ever before. This speaks well for Mr. Graham, our efficient roadoverseer.

Mrs. Adam Yenni and little son of Sacramento were the guests of Mrs. P. Forni of this place the fore part of the week.

Hugh Chance and W. M. Mullen, employees of the Union Iron Works, San Francisco, visited their relatives here Sunday.

Campbell MacQuiddy and F. M. Burris were passengers on Tuesday morning's Southern Pacific train en route to the county seat.

Ken Weaver left for Tuolumne county Wednesday morning, where he goes to look out for his father's mining interests during the winter.

Rudolph Spreckels ponies, which he recently entered in the Polo races at Burlingame, San Mateo county, arrived here Wednesday on the Southern Pacific and were driven to the Spreckels ranch stables.

HAPPY HOOLIGAN.

El Verano, Dec. 1, 1904.

Accident to Geo. Zoberbier.

George Zoberbier, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Zoberbier, formerly of Agua Caliente, was dragged by a pet pony on Saturday last in Santa Rosa, and sustained a severe wound alongside of the eye and numerous bruises.

The boy had gone to a picnic, driving his pony, which was hitched to a brand new buggy. When he arrived at the picnic grounds he endeavored to take the bridle off the animal, when the pony bolted and ran. Zoberbier clung to the animal, and was dragged down Grosse's grade for some distance before his hold on the harness was broken.

The new buggy was a complete wreck.

RECTOR OF ST. LUKE'S,

Ashburnham, Ontario, Testifies to the Good Qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

ASHBURNHAM, Ont., April 18, 1903.—I think it is only right that I should tell you what a wonderful effect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has produced. The day before Easter I was so distressed with a cold and cough that I did not think to be able to take any duties the next day, as my voice was almost choked by the cough. The same day I received an order from you for a bottle of your Cough Remedy. I at once procured a sample bottle, and took about three doses of the medicine. To my great relief the cough and cold had completely disappeared, and I was able to preach three times on Easter Day. I know that this rapid and effective cure was due to your Cough Remedy. I make this testimonial without solicitation, being thankful to have found such a God-sent remedy.

Respectfully yours,
E. A. LANGFELDT, M. A.,
Rector of St. Luke's Church.

MAY BE AN HEIR TO BIG FORTUNE

A. M. Barley, Formerly of El Verano, May Get an Estate in Germany.

A. M. Barley, who for several years resided at El Verano, but lately moved to San Francisco, believes himself to be the heir of a rich estate in Germany. Mr. Barley made the discovery by reading a dispatch in the Bulletin of San Francisco, which told that certain property had been battled over in the Prussian courts for eighty-six years by connections of the Kessler family of Philadelphia.

Mr. Barley at once recognized his wife's former name, and tracing the relationship discovered that she would be the direct heir to the Kessler estate.

Eighty-six years ago, in Germany, Mrs. Elizabeth Kessler was left 800 marks. The estate became involved in long litigation, however, and only lately was settled, and the administrator instructed to search for the heirs.

Meanwhile Mrs. Kessler and children had come to America and settled in Philadelphia. There she died, and no clew could be found of her children, who were then the rightful heirs.

Mrs. Barley, who would have been an heir, died about two years ago, so now her husband is seeking to be appointed administrator of the $100,000 estate which their son Robert should have inherited.

GLEN ELLEN

By Chappie.

Charles Lane was a visitor here Sunday.

Robert Hill was a visitor to the county seat Monday.

Miss May Monahan visited Sonoma friends Sunday last.

Miss May Wilkins of Oakland was a guest at the Justi ranch Sunday and Monday.

Miss Pearl Allen will leave for San Francisco next week, where she is going to learn stenography.

The Bagoni Bros., formerly of the Jas. A. Shaw ranch, have already sold their season's vintage.

A large number of Kenwood people attended the funeral of Mrs. J. S. Wilson in Santa Rosa Saturday.

Miss Elliott Trowbridge returned Sunday from Berkeley after a pleasant visit of a week with friends.

H. H. Granice, editor of the Sonoma Index-Tribune, was up this way Saturday. Now we know who "Chappie" is.

Olives are a month ahead of the season this year in this section of the country. A number of private homes have them already on their tables.

The Womans' Improvement Club of Glen Ellen is all right. The ladies are busy getting things ready for their ball on the 16th inst., which promises to be a great success and the event of the season.

Miss Lottie Howard, teacher of the Glen Ellen public school, gave her scholars a picnic in Graham canyon last Friday. Miss Howard takes great pride in her school and is much beloved by her pupils.

Glen Ellen may soon have a midnight reception. It will be given in honor of the prowler who visits our ranches after twelve o'clock at night. I tell you, it will be a warm one, too. The buckshot is all ready for the occasion.

Mr. John D. Bosch, superintendent of the California Wine Association at Geyserville, called on old friends at this place Wednesday. Mr. Bosch was at one time cellar boss of the Chauvet winery and has some very warm friends here who are always glad to see him.

"It is not while beauty and youth are thine own,
And thy cheeks unprofaned by a tear,
That the fervor and faith of a soul may be known
To which time will make thee more dear!
Oh, the heart that has truly loved never forgets,
But as truly loves on to the close;
As the sunflower turns to her god when he sets
The same look which she turned when he rose."

The twentieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lemoine was celebrated at their picturesque Glen Ellen home last Saturday evening, and was an affair long to be remembered by those who had been bidden to the festivities. The guests were not informed of the happy occasion of the gathering until they had assembled at the banquet board, when Mr. Lemoine arose and announced that the feast was in honor of the twenty years of married bliss enjoyed by him and his estimable wife. His words were full of praise for her who had journeyed with him thus far in life, and told of the peace, health and plenty that may be enjoyed when sacred ties bind loving hearts.

The table had been showered with violets and mignonettes, and with its snowy white damask, bright silver and glistening glassware, was as pretty a table as ever sat down to. Dinner was served in courses, accompanied by the mellow wines of our own Sonoma Valley, and those of the sunny slopes of Bordeaux.

Thomas Johnson acted as toastmaster, and proposed a toast to the health of the host and hostess. Henry Chauvet responded to "California," and Anton Froment made a pleasing speech, in which he spoke of the perfect life of harmony lived by Mr. and Mrs. Lemoine. There were many other congratulatory speeches, all full of wishes for many more years of happiness to this popular couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Lemoine are now blessed with a charming young lady daughter, Miss Carrie, who is attending school at the Academy in San Rafael, and she, too, graced the home on this bright occasion. Miss Lemoine is a talented girl, and beloved by all who know her. Her parents adore her, and well they may.

One must travel a long ways through life before a more congenial family than the Lemoines be found. May they ever prosper, and live to enjoy a golden wedding, is the wish of Chappie.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATED

Masons and Eastern Star Banquet Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Goodman.

Last night at Masonic Hall a big surprise had been arranged in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Goodman. The surprise took the form of a banquet, at the conclusion of which a handsome silver, gold-lined berry service was presented to the guests of honor by the Masons and Eastern Star, of which Mr. and Mrs. Goodman are both charter members.

The hall was beautifully decorated, and the tables laden with a bounteous feast. There was congratulatory speeches and much merry-making.

The Goodmans were married in Sonoma Valley fifty years ago, and have resided continuously on their ranch at Embarcadero up to a few months ago, when they took up their residence on Broadway.

The same ranch, after having been in their hands for fifty years, was sold on their anniversary day for a goodly sum.

John Wall Passes Away.

COMMITTEES FOR CHRISTMAS BAZAAR

Ladies Named Who Will Have the Womans' Club Festival in Charge.

Great preparations are going on for the three days' bazaar to be given by Sonoma Valley Womans' Club for the benefit of the Plaza, on the 19th, 20th and 21st of December.

The festivities will open with a matinee on the afternoon of the 19th. There will be a juvenile program, and the babies who will contest for the prize will be on exhibition during the afternoon. All mothers are urged to bring their babies and enter them in the contest. All babies under three years of age are eligible.

Handsome dolls of all kinds will be for sale, and at the various other booths there will be refreshments.

One pretty feature of the bazaar will be a Christmas tree laden with presents, which will take the place of a grab bag.

A juvenile performance will be given also on the opening evening. A number of clever children will appear, and a burlesque on the Womans' Club will be given, with a local topical song written by C. C. Granice. Miss Minnie Cooke is also preparing some attractive numbers for the evening.

The choral expects to give a fine program on the second evening, and the mask ball at the close of the carnival will be a big affair. Every evening before the carnival begins the Sonoma Band have kindly offered to give a concert in front of Union Hall.

Following are the committees that have been appointed:

General Manager—Mrs. R. P. Hill.

Committee of Arrangements—Mrs. J. D. Wagnon, Chairman; Mrs. A. Bates and Mrs. Quartaroli, assistants.

Sinking of Track Causes Trouble.

A section of track near Schellville on the California Northwestern road has been giving considerable trouble the past week or ten days. The rains of Tuesday night caused the sinking of a portion of the track built over boggy land, and traffic had to be transferred from one train to another in order to get around it. Thursday night a week ago two locomotives attached to a work train were derailed and nearly overturned. They were finally gotten back on the track.

A large force of men is still at work repairing the roadbed which has caused the damage.

HOW FORESTS GROW

THERE ARE TWO GREAT TYPES, THE PURE AND MIXED.

One of the Marvelous Feats of Nature Is the Balancing of Conditions Where Trees of Different Habits Enter the Struggle For Existence.

The laws which govern the distribution of trees produce the two great types, the pure and the mixed forest. The former is the result of local conditions which trees of one kind only can survive.

In the North woods the balsam occupies the swamps, usually to the exclusion of all competitors, since no other of the native trees can thrive in wet places. In the Black Hills and other parts of the middle west the small demands of the bull pine upon moisture enable it to form pure woods on a soil too dry to support other native trees. The jack pine of the New Jersey barrens and the long leaf pine of the southern states grow in pure or nearly pure stands since they alone can withstand the peculiar conditions of these regions.

Where climate and soil are favorable to various trees we find the mixed forest, the number of species in mixture depending upon the suitability of the locality to forest growth.

Upon the hardwood flats of the Adirondacks the hard maple, the yellow birch and the beech are the only deciduous trees able to withstand the severe climate. In the southern Appalachian forests, where the trees of the north and south meet under conditions favorable to both, we find more than 100 different kinds.

The distribution of trees, therefore, is the joint result of local conditions and of the individual and varying requirements of the different species upon moisture, soil and climate. The laws, however, which govern forest distribution are not identical with those which regulate the behavior of trees in mixture. They do not explain why each species, if undisturbed, maintains the same proportion in the mixed forest. Why does not the hard maple drive out its competitors in the Adirondacks, the oak gain the upper hand in the forests of the southern Appalachians, the red fir exterminate the western hemlock on the Pacific slope?

Wherever a mixed forest occurs there is an unrelenting struggle going on. Let us see how the combatants are armed and why the representation of each species remains unchanged.

The more important of the characteristics which affect the capacity of a tree to hold its own in mixture with trees of other kinds are its demands upon light, its rate of growth and its power of reproduction. No two species require an equal amount of light, grow at the same rate or are identical in their capacity to reproduce themselves. The endowment of each, with habits differing from those of its neighbors, but with strength and weakness so balanced that all which occur in mixture enter the struggle for existence upon an equal footing, is one of the marvelous feats of nature.

The red spruce of the North woods, through its ability to endure dense shade, has been given the power to hold its own against faster growing competitors, some of which exceed it greatly in their capacity to reproduce themselves. The young spruces which spring up here and there throughout the forest struggle along under the heavy crowns of the hard woods, where a tree making more insistent demands upon light could not survive.

In the forests of the southern Appalachians the oak is in many localities the characteristic tree. Growing rapidly and exceedingly hardy, it might be expected to increase steadily its proportion in the mixture. The equilibrium is maintained through the fact that the oak can endure but little shade and that its seed is heavy, limiting its reproduction to the immediate vicinity of the parent tree.

In the same region the yellow poplar and the chestnut, both trees which grow rapidly and are capable of enduring considerable shade, are controlled, the one because much of its seed is barren, the other because many of the nuts are eaten by animals. And the red cedar, of slow growth and sparse representation, is aided through the distribution of its seeds by birds, with their power to germinate unimpaired.

The aspen, short lived and requiring much light, holds its own with longer lived and shade enduring trees because its downy seed is produced in great quantities and is scattered far and wide by the wind. The ash and the basswood, of rapid growth and bearing an abundance of seed, are withheld by strong demands upon light and by the seed of a fresh and fertile soil. The red fir, equaled by few North American trees in rapidity of growth and otherwise well equipped to gain the upper hand in its region, is controlled through the usual failure of its seed to germinate except when accident has removed the leaf litter and exposed the mineral soil.

The study of trees as living, striving organisms in a world of their own leads an almost human interest in the forest. Every day spent in the woods will be the pleasanter for some insight gained into what is going on within it, and an earnest observer can gain knowledge of practical value by an attempt to discover the factors which control the occurrence of trees in mixture. Forestry, which deals with the development of the highest utility of forests, means a thorough understanding of the habits of trees.—Overton W. Price in Youth's Companion.

There is entirely too much time taken up every day trying to help those make up their minds who don't know what they want.—Atchison Globe.

THE SCENE PAINTER.

He Plays an Important Part In Staging a Modern Play.

When a play has been accepted for production it is sent to the scene painter, who goes over it carefully, taking note of all details to be reproduced. Then, if the subject is difficult, he makes a sketch of it in the flat. If this proves satisfactory to manager, actor and author, he builds it up in a miniature model on the scale of half an inch to the foot as perfect in proportion and exquisite in detail as the finished scene. An old gentleman lately, looking over a collection of models in one of the New York studios, remarked that his granddaughter would be delighted to have them for doll houses. The proprietor of the studio smiled to himself. The models for a single play cost well up toward a thousand dollars. For an ordinary four act comedy the models, scenes, properties and costumes cost, let us say, five or six thousand dollars. The cost of the great scenic productions is never as much as the press agents say, but has been known to exceed $100,000.

When the model is approved, the stage carpenter takes measurements for such framework as may be necessary. The clumsy construction of the old days has given way to the solidest sort of building. Windows slide in their sashes; doors slam, shut and lock. Staircases are solid to the tread. Trees are built up in the round, and columns are turned out of solid wood. But as every show is intended to travel among all the great cities of the continent the heaviest scene must be made up of pieces short enough to be packed in a freight car.

The scene painter marks out the pieces of his model in tiny squares and then hangs a huge canvas beside the paint bridge with corresponding squares in scale. The draftsman stands on the bridge with a piece of charcoal on a stick like a billiard cue and square by square copies the lines of the model, while an assistant raises and lowers the cloth with tackle. When the body paint is put on, and the details are added until the cloth is complete.—John Corbin in Scribner's.

A WOMAN'S PHILOSOPHY.

There ain't no possible good 's c'n come o' lendin' money to them 's ain't able to pay it back.

'S far 's my observation 's extended, it's always folks a long ways off 's it's wisest to lay all faults to.

No woman as 's goin' to fall in love ever ought to begin by marryin' another man first. It mixes things all up.

'S far 's my observation 's extended, no one don't ask for advice 'unless they've pretty well made up their mind not to take it.

It's better for you to learn the lesson 's all is vanity now than to wait 'n' have it fall on your head like a unexpected pickle jar.

I didn't get my trunk down 'cause I'll have Friday to pack anyhow, 'n' any one c'n slide a trunk down a ladder any time, but nobody can't never slide nothin' up nowhere.—"Susan Clegg and Her Friend, Mrs. Lathrop," by Anne Warner.

Vivisection.

There is a knowledge which is heavenly, a knowledge which is human and a knowledge which is diabolic; there is a knowledge which is blessed and a knowledge which is accursed. The first is ennobling and elevating and lifts man toward God. The second is debasing, degrading, and drags men toward the pit. The knowledge gained by rooting amid the groans and agonies of living creatures, whom their Maker and ours put into our power, to teach us mercy, as he gives mercy to us, is such an accursed knowledge that only demons could seek for it, and it can turn to no human good. "Science" so gained is not for men, but for devils.—Bishop Hugh Miller Thompson in Success.

Battles In the Snow.

Many great battles have been fought in the snow, Eilau and Hohenlinden being familiar examples. Austerlitz was fought in intensely cold weather, and the Russian losses were increased by Napoleon turning the fire of his artillery on the frozen lakes over which the Russians sought to retreat. In our civil war Fort Donelson was captured in February, Fredericksburg was fought in December, Stone River Dec. 31, 1862, Jan. 2, 1863, and Thomas defeated and ruined Hood's army at Nashville on the 15th and 16th of December, 1864.

His Mark.

It is well known that people who are unable to write usually use for their signatures the familiar cross or X. Why this sign is used instead of any other is not generally known. In times long gone by the early Christians used to sign with the cross to distinguish them from the heathen. Kings and nobles, too, were wont to affix a cross to documents, whether they could write or not, as a symbol that they pledged themselves to the Christian faith and thus to the truth of the matter to which the cross was affixed.

A Retort.

"You are not in it with me," said the nightingale, with a superior air. "You can't touch a high note at all."

"No?" replied the bird of paradise. "Why, even when I'm dead and embalmed on a bonnet I'll bet I'll come pretty near touching a fifty dollar note all right."—Philadelphia Press.

To Clean Up Silver.

"They say alcohol will clean silver up nicely," remarked the man who acquires facts.

"It will," agreed the red nosed individual. "It cleaned up all my silver."—Philadelphia Record.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Forgiveness is a very poor foundation for friendship.

Going visiting is like borrowing from the neighbors—you have to pay back.

Which would be wiser for a man past fifty to do—marry a trained nurse or a good cook?

There is need of a never-find-fault-with-your-meals club. Digestion would be better and the family happier.

If a secret is kept a secret this is one sign that it was not considered important enough to tell.

One thing about an idle woman—she does not stand on the street and bore people with her "views," as an idle man does.

Speaking of superfluous words, is it necessary to say in telling that a woman has gone visiting that she is visiting "friends?"—Atchison Globe.

To the Point.

The late General Russell Hastings served with distinction in the civil war, and his wartime reminiscences were amusing.

He was describing one day a time when the soldiers' pay had been in arrears.

"A young westerner, full of braggadocio," he said, "walked up to his captain during the temporary trouble, saluted and said sternly:

"'Three words with you, cap.'

"'Well,' said the captain, 'what are they?'

"'Money or discharge.'

"The captain smiled grimly.

"'Four with you,' he said.

"'Well?'

"'Neither one nor t'other.'"—New York Tribune.

Coughing Spell Caused Death.

"Harry Duckwell, aged 25 years, choked to death early yesterday morning at his home, in the presence of his wife and child. He contracted a slight cold a few days ago, and paid but little attention to it. Yesterday morning he was seized with a fit of coughing which continued some time. His wife sent for a physician, but before he could arrive another coughing spell came on, and Duckwell died from suffocation.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Dec. 1, 1901." Ballard's Horehound Syrup would have saved him. 25c, 50c, $1 00. Sold by L. S. Simmons, prescription druggist, Sonoma, Cal.

Expected Acquisitions.

"You don't belong to one of the oldest families, do you?" said the supercilious woman.

"No," answered Mrs. Cumrox. "But after we get the girls married we expect to have several of the oldest families belonging to us."—Washington Star.

Hot and Cold.

Bilks (disconsolately)—Yes, my creditors are making it hot for me. Jilks (consolingly)—Well, this is a cold world.—Pittsburg Post.

"I was much afflicted with sciatica," writes Ed. C. Nud, Iowaville, Sedgwick Co., Kan., "going about on crutches and suffering a deal of pain. I was induced to try Ballard's Snow Liniment, which relieved me. I used three 50c bottles. It is the greatest liniment I ever used; have recommended it to a number of persons; all express themselves as being benefited by it. I now walk without crutches, able to perform a great deal of light labor on the farm." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons, prescription druggist, Sonoma, Cal.

Married Men Live Longer.

Mortality among bachelors from the age of thirty to forty-five is 27 per cent, while among married men of the same age it is 18 per cent. For forty-one bachelors who attain the age of forty years there are seventy-eight married men who attain the same age. The difference is still more striking in persons of advanced age. At sixty years of age there remain but twenty-two bachelors for forty-eight married men, at seventy eleven bachelors for twenty-seven married men and at eighty three bachelors for nine married men.

Sage Counsel.

"You want a piece er edvice fer yo' lifetime?"

"I sho' does."

"Well, den, don't ever try ter whip de devil roun' de stump. Yo' cloze is boun' ter ketch fire, en you'll burn up befo' yo' time!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Fatal Blunder.

"He is gone!" she wailed. "He is gone forever!"

"Don't be downcast," her friend urged. "He may come back."

"No, no; I shall never see him again. I gave up the letters he had written to me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Had Her Appetite.

Harry—Molly, you look good enough to eat. Molly—All you have to do is ask me to dine. I'll do the eating all right.—Boston Transcript.

Cured Paralysis.

W. S. Baily, P. O. True, Texas, writes: "My wife had been suffering five years with paralysis in her arm, when I was persuaded to use Ballard's Snow Liniment, which cured her all right. I have also used it for old sores, frostbites and skin eruptions. It does the work." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons, prescription druggist, Sonoma, Cal.

Finding an Excuse.

An irascible old colonel who used to play golf at Sandwich, which is on the river Stour, had a habit, common with many, of blaming everybody but himself for his bad strokes. Finally one day, becoming badly bunkered, he first took mighty vengeance on the turf with his club; then, glaring around in expectation of the usually friendly comments and nobody saying anything, he blurted out, "How can you expect a man to play decent golf on these cursed links with ships passing up and down the channel?"—London Mail.
